PROCEEDINGS OF THE
LINGUISTIC SOCIETY OF AMERICA
AT THE 7TH SUMMER MEETING
MADISON, WISCONSIN, JULY 21-22, 1944

The Linguistic Society of America held its Seventh Special Summer Meeting at the University of Wisconsin on Friday and Saturday, July 21-22, 1944 in conjunction with the session of the Linguistic Institute on the campus of the University.

Many members attending the meeting accepted the invitation to arrive somewhat in advance of the sessions, or to stay over after their conclusion in order to attend the lectures and conferences on linguistic subjects which had been arranged for the days immediately before and after the meeting.

The Local Committee in charge of arrangements consisted of Messrs. Myles Dillon, chairman; Einar Haugen and J. M. Cowan.

The First Session was held on the afternoon of Friday, July 21. Mr. E. H. Sturtevant, Associate Director of the Linguistic Institute, called the meeting to order at 2:30 P.M. and presided throughout the session. About 40 persons were present. Mr. Einar Haugen, Director of the Linguistic Institute, welcomed the Society and its guests on behalf of the University of Wisconsin.

Papers 1-5 were presented and discussed.

The Chairman appointed as Committee on Resolutions Mr. A. W. Read, chairman; Mr. William Gedney and Mr. T. A. Sebeok.

Mr. Cowan explained arrangements for the informal subscription dinner at the Wisconsin Union. The meeting adjourned at 5:20 P.M.

The Second Session was called to order at 8:00 P.M. with Mr. Cowan presiding. About 40 persons were present.

Papers 6-8 were presented and discussed. The meeting adjourned at 10:30 P.M.

The Third Session was held on the morning of Saturday, July 22. The meeting was called to order at 9:30 A.M. by Mr. Einar Haugen, who presided throughout the session.

Papers 9-11 were presented and discussed. Following these Mr. Cowan gave a brief report on the operations of the Intensive Language Program of the American Council of Learned Societies and the activities of linguists in government service.

Mr. Read, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, presented the following report, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that the Linguistic Society of America cordially thank the University of Wisconsin for its kindness in inviting us to hold our Seventh Summer Meeting on its campus. We are grateful to the administration of the University for its hospitality to us, to Professor Einar Haugen, Director of the Linguistic Institute, for his genial words of welcome, and to the members of the Local Committee, Professor Myles Dillon (chairman), Professor Einar Haugen, and Professor J. M. Cowan, for making the many necessary arrangements. Our appreciation is the greater because the unusual difficulties created by wartime conditions were successfully surmounted.

The meeting adjourned at 12:10 P.M.

The complete list of papers presented at this meeting follows:

1. E. A. NIDA (Summer Institute of Linguistics): A System of Grammatical Analysis. Discussion by Messrs. Rubenstein, Pittman, King, Sturtevant.
2. T. A. SEBEOK (Indiana University): The Imperative in Spoken Finnish. Discussion by Messrs. Sturtevant, King, Goetze, Voegelin, Bonfante, Miss Saleski.

In addition to these, 28 guests registered.

President Malone called the First Session to order at 9:30 A.M. and presided throughout. Papers 1-5 were read and discussed; the business session followed. About 65 persons were present during the session.

The reading of the minutes of the preceding meetings was called for. The Secretary stated that the minutes of the Chapel Hill and Durham meeting of July 11-12, 1941, and those of the Eighteenth Annual Meeting held in Indianapolis on January 1-2, 1942, had already been printed in Bulletin 15; further that the minutes of the Chapel Hill and Durham meeting of July 10-11, 1942, had been printed in Bulletin 16, and those of the Madison meeting of July 16-17, 1943 had been printed in Bulletin 17, and that no corrections to any of these had been brought to his attention. On motion it was voted that the minutes of these four meetings be dispensed with, and that they be adopted. On a further motion it was voted that the reading of the minutes of the Seventh Summer Meeting at Madison July 21-22, 1944 be dispensed with, as they were to appear in Bulletin 18.

On motion it was voted that the reports of officers and committees for 1942 as published in Bulletin 16, and for 1943 as published in Bulletin 17 be adopted.

The Secretary, Mr. Cowan, presented the following report, which was ordered received and filed:

The membership statistics are as follows: Starting 1943 there were 563 members, apart from Honorary Members, of whom one died during the year (Nathaniel J. Reich); 16 presented their resignations effective at the end of 1943 and two returned publications of 1943, submitting resignations effective at the end of 1942 (1942: Amelia Sussman, C. A. Yoe; 1943: Florence Bloch, A. F. Buffington, A. H. Dahlstrom, H. A. Deferrari, W. R. Gaede, Joseph H. Greenberg, Laura Heminger, H. M. Hubbell, R. M. Lumiansky, Gottfried Merkel, Helen Pope, E. A. Robinson, Frank Ryder, L. L. Scaife, J. R. Swanton, L. C. Tihany); 29 were dropped for non-payment of dues during 1942 and 1943. The net membership with which the Society started 1944 was therefore 515; the increase in membership for 1944 is 45 (44 new members, one former member reinstated); one Active Member became a Life Member in 1944. The total membership for 1944, apart from Honorary Members, is 560, a loss of 3 as compared with 1943. We regretfully record the death of 5 members in 1944: Edward C. Armstrong on March 5, Thomas K. Browne Jr. on June 5, Klara H. Collitz on November 22, Nelson G. McCrea, a Foundation Member, on May 30, Dave H. Morris on May 4. There were 21 names on the list of Honorary Members in 1943. [Word has reached us of the death of Arthur Ungnad in 1944.]

The domestic Library Subscriptions have increased from 131 to 142 by a loss of 5 and a gain of 16; the foreign subscriptions have increased from 21 to 30 by a loss of one and a gain of 10.

The American Library Association purchased 45 subscriptions to LANGUAGE for 1944. These are to be stored by the Society and distributed at the direction of the Association's Committee on Libraries in War Areas after the cessation of hostilities. The exchange copies and copies for review are 10 domestic and 14 foreign at the end of 1944. There are 45 members in the Group for American Indian Linguistics.

As Treasurer, Mr. Cowan presented the following report:

On motion it was voted to empower the Executive Committee to adopt the Treasurer's report after receiving the report of the auditors.

On behalf of the Executive Committee the Secretary presented the following report:

During the year the Executive Committee, acting by correspondence, elected to membership the lists of nominees published in LANGUAGE as elected in 1944; discharged Major W. F. Edgerton with a vote of thanks from the Committee on Investment of Linguistic Institute Endowment Funds, since he is now overseas and unable to function on the committee; discharged the Committee on the Endowment Fund of the Linguistic Institute with a vote of thanks for its services—the committee carried out collection of pledges in the current campaign most energetically with the result that practically all outstanding pledges have been paid; fixed the time and place of the present meeting and arranged the program.

Mr. Malone as president, and with Executive Committee approval, appointed Mr. H. M. Hoenigswald to the Standing Committee on Research, serving through 1947; appointed Mr. John Kepke as delegate to the American Association for the Advancement of Science; appointed Mr. E. H. Sehart as delegate to the American Documentation Institute; appointed Mr. Kenneth L. Pike as delegate to the Mexican Council for Indigenous Languages; appointed Mr. J. M. Cowan as Councillor of the Inter-American Society of Anthropology and Geography; appointed Mr. E. H. Sehart to the Committee on Investment of Linguistic Institute Endowment Funds; continued the Committee on the Place of the Linguistic Institute (E. H. Sturtevant, Chairman; Roland G. Kent, Hans Kurath); appointed the Local Committee for the New York Meeting (E. Adelaide Hahn, Chairman; Louis H. Gray, John Kepke).

The Executive Committee met on Thursday evening, December 28, 1944 at the Biltmore Hotel in New York. Present, President Kemp Malone, presiding, and Mr. Y. R. Chao, Mr. J. M. Cowan, Miss Edith Clafin, Mr. Hans Kurath, Mr. E. H. Sturtevant as proxy for Miss Mary Haas, Mr. Franklin Edgerton as proxy for Mr. A. H. Marckwardt; also by constitutional provision Miss E. A. Hahn, Mr. C. C. Fries, Mr. W. F. Twaddell, Mr. Miles Hanley (these without vote); and Mr. Bernard Bloch by invitation.

Additional nominees for membership were elected.

Reports of officers, of standing committees and special committees, and of delegates were informally presented and their contents considered.

Mr. E. H. Sturtevant was elected as Delegate of the Society to the American Council of Learned Societies, serving through 1948, and was duly appointed by the President.

The Executive Committee, as a result of its deliberations, asks the Society to approve the following recommendations:

1. That the invitation of the University of Michigan to hold the Linguistic Institute on its campus during the summer of 1945 be accepted.
2. That the Society recommend to the University of Michigan the appointment of Mr. C. C. Fries as Director of the Institute for 1945.
3. That the Treasurer be empowered to pay to the University of Michigan for the purpose of paying part or all of the salary of one or more members of the Institute staff a sum not to exceed the amount standing on the books of the Society on June 1, 1945 to the credit of the current funds of the Linguistic Institute.
4. That a summer meeting of the Society be held in conjunction with the Linguistic Institute if conditions at that time permit.

Other matters were considered, but did not call for formal action.

The report was ordered to be received and filed. On motion the Society adopted collectively the recommendations of the Executive Committee 1-4 by unanimous consent.

Mr. Bloch, Editor and Chairman of the Society's Committee on Publications, presented the following report, which was ordered to be received and filed:

During 1944, the Society issued the following publications:

LANGUAGE, Volume 20; 270 pages.

BULLETIN No. 17: Proceedings of the Madison Meeting 1943; Reports of Officers and Committees 1943; List of Members 1943; 46 pages.

LANGUAGE DISSERTATION No. 38: Outline of Burmese Grammar, by WILLIAM CORNYN; 34 pages.

LANGUAGE MONOGRAPH No. 21: Hungarian Grammar, by ROBERT A. HALL JR.; 91 pages.

SPECIAL PUBLICATION: The Athetized Lines of the Iliad, by GEORGE MELVILLE BOLLING; bound in buckram, 200 pages.

A rough classification of articles and reviews in Volume 20 of the journal reveals the following distribution. The number of pages shown is approximate only.

General topics	4 items	46 pages
Hittite and Indo-Hittite	3 items	25 pages
Greek and Latin	3 items	7 pages
Romance languages	9 items	77 pages
English	5 items	18 pages
Other IE languages	5 items	38 pages
Semitic languages	3 items	16 pages
Finno-Ugric languages	2 items	4 pages
Sino-Tibetan languages	2 items	16 pages
American Indian languages	2 items	18 pages

There appeared, in all, 25 articles and 13 reviews. During the year, it was found necessary to decline five articles, of which four dealt with general topics.

At the end of my fifth year as Editor, I wish to lay before the Society a statement of the practice I have followed in handling its publications. Some features of this practice rest on the precedent established by Professor George Melville Bolling during the fifteen years of his editorship; some have been suggested to me by other members of the Society; some are the result of my own experience.

It is the duty of an Editor, in a Society like ours, not only to deal with the individual contributions that are sent to him, but also to decide questions of general policy. In these decisions I have at all times consulted my colleagues on the Committee on Publications, and have in every case adopted their recommendations. The function of this Committee, as I understand it, is to act as an advisory board, to which the Editor may go for advice in all matters that he feels himself unable or unwilling to decide alone. When the decision is one that will affect the general policy of the journal, the Editor not only may but must consult his colleagues on this Committee.

A listing of some of the problems in which I have asked advice from the Committee will indicate the variety of questions that arise in the course of editorial work. I state them here in chronological order, greatly abbreviated, and for each one I indicate the Committee's answer.

Should the Society publish textbooks purely pedagogic in purpose? No.

Should the Editor accept for publication in LANGUAGE articles based on the author's doctoral dissertation, provided of course that the articles are acceptable on their own merits? Yes.

Should the Editor accept for publication in LANGUAGE articles by distinguished European scholars, not residents of this country, who are neither members nor honorary members of the Society? No.

Should the Society publish in its series of LANGUAGE DISSERTATIONS an M.A. thesis by an English scholar, accepted by an English university? No.

Should the Society act as publisher for future volumes of the Linguistic Atlas, provided that the Society does not thereby incur financial responsibility? Yes.

Should a page or two be set aside in each number of LANGUAGE for the reprinting of excerpts from current books, magazines, and newspapers illustrating popular misconceptions about language and linguistics? No.

Should the Society undertake to act as publisher for a series of elementary language manuals prepared by some of its members for the use of the Armed Forces, provided that the Society incurs no financial responsibility and that its part in such publications is clearly understood as a wartime measure? Yes.

May articles that appear in LANGUAGE be reprinted in other journals without charge, if the provenience of such articles is clearly indicated? Yes.

Should the Society, through its Committee on Publications, sponsor the preparation of a dictionary of linguistic terms with 'authoritative' definitions, or at least investigate the possibilities of such a work? No.

Should the Editor accept for publication a statement by the author of a book recently reviewed in LANGUAGE, charging the reviewer with having obtained a copy of the book under false pretenses and with having written his review from motives of ill will and malice; or, failing this, should the Editor invite both parties to the quarrel to prepare a brief statement of the facts, to be published in the journal; or should the Editor take some other action? No.

Besides matters of general policy, I have asked the Committee on Publications to decide, from time to time, what course I should follow in accepting or declining a particular contribution—especially if the author has expressed himself as dissatisfied with a previous decision. But though a number of articles and reviews have thus been submitted to the Committee for an opinion, I have considered its chief function to be that of an advisory board on matters of policy.

In passing on the contributions sent in to me for publication in the journal, my practice has been as follows. If the author of the paper is known to me as a scholar of acknowledged pre-eminence, or as a recognized authority in his field, I have automatically accepted the contribution, and have confined my work on it to proofreading and marking it for the printer. If the author is not known to me as belonging to this category,¹ I have tried to judge his paper on its merits as a contribution to linguistics. Where I felt myself competent to reach a decision by myself, I have done so; but more often I have submitted the paper to a referee, carefully chosen for his general scholarship and for his special knowledge of the field. Whenever I could, I have used as my referee a member of the Committee on Publications; but I have not hesitated to ask the opinion of other linguists, not members of this Committee, if either the special knowledge required for the task or any other consideration appeared to make such a course desirable.

If the verdict of the first reader—my own or the referee's—was unambiguous and emphatic, I have been content to abide by it. But if this verdict was not clear, or if the reader's opinion of the paper was divided, I have in every case submitted the paper to a second reader, and sometimes to a third, until I thought I had sufficient reason to decide upon it, one way or the other.

In some cases it has been impossible, even after several attempts, to secure an unambiguous verdict. My inclination has been, then, to prefer the risk of publishing a weak paper to the risk of suppressing a good one. A number of my decisions now seem to me to have been mistakes; but these have all consisted in accepting what should have been left unprinted, not in the more serious offense of denying publication to articles of genuine merit.

The editorial policy here described, in all its aspects, was approved by a unanimous vote of the Committee on Publications in March 1942.

In the five years of my editorship I have received 346 contributions for the journal: 219 articles and 127 reviews. Of these, 268 (156 articles, 112 reviews) have been published—about 77%. I do not know what the proportion is in other scholarly journals; but I should be surprised if it were commonly as high as this.

The 346 contributions were sent in by 157 scholars. Of these, 84 (61%) have had all their contributions published; 23 (17%) have had some of them accepted, some declined; and 31 (22%) have as yet seen none of their work in LANGUAGE.²

¹ Since my contacts are limited and my experience is not as wide as perhaps it should be, it is of course no reflection upon the merits of a scholar to say that he happens to be not known to me as a recognized authority. The distinction implied in my procedure is a biographical accident, not a professional judgment.

² It is perhaps worth noting, as evidence of the high morale in our Society, that several of these 31 scholars have repeatedly submitted contributions, undiscouraged by previous rejections. Only one or two have charged (if rumor is to be believed) that they are permanently 'barred from the pages of LANGUAGE'.

The papers declined in the course of these five years belong to no one 'school' of linguistics, represent no one approach to the goals of our science. It must be clear to anyone who has read the last five volumes of our journal that LANGUAGE has not been allowed to become the organ of any 'school' or clique. The charge, occasionally brought against the Committee on Publications (though never directly), that only believers in a certain brand of psychology have any chance to publish in our journal, is obviously false, since the Committee cannot know, and does not ask, what each contributor believes in, and since one has only to read the journal to find reflections of every kind of psychology current among productive linguists. That an editor has opinions of his own on any subject will not be held against him, so long as he does not allow them to override his judgment.

This leads me to speak of two complaints that have occasionally been made by members of the Society. The first I have heard only at second hand, never from those who make it; the other has been once or twice addressed to me directly.

It has been said that too much space is given in our journal to specialists in one field, or even—fantastic as it must seem—to employees of one university. It should be obvious that an editor cannot control the variety of the contributions which he receives: his choice is limited to what he gets. Beyond this, I can only say that no article published in our journal during the last five years¹ has crowded out another which might have appeared if there had been more space. An article declined is declined for internal reasons, on the basis of the Editor's best judgment or more often of a referee's opinion; no article is declined because there is not room for it in the journal. If there have been too many articles in one field or from one university, the fault—if it is one—could have been remedied only by making the journal poorer, or at least thinner.

The other complaint is that my manner of dealing with contributions, already described in this report, is arbitrary and autocratic; that to regard the other members of the Committee on Publications as advisers, not as co-editors, is dictatorial. To obviate the danger of centralization, it has been suggested that all contributions be circulated among the members of the Committee, and accepted or declined only by a majority vote.

To handle contributions in this way would not only impose a very considerable burden of work upon all four members of the Committee, but would intolerably protract the work of assembling each number of LANGUAGE. That work proceeds now slowly enough, through nobody's fault; to slow it down still more is not to be thought of.

But considerations of efficiency are less important than the question of editorial responsibility. Since the Editor is elected annually, the Society retains upon his actions the most effective of all possible checks: if it finds his management of the journal incompetent or arbitrary or in any other way displeasing, or if it merely considers that someone else could do a better job, it relieves him of his duties and elects a new Editor in his place. I do not see how the Society can be endangered by arbitrary or autocratic behavior on the part of an officer so obviously dependent on the Society's approval for the continuation of his office.

The other members of the Committee on Publications are less easily checked. They are elected for three years at a time, and there is no machinery for ejecting them from office before the expiration of their term. They represent continuity and stability, important features of editorial policy; but their tenure is not that of agents directly accountable to the Society.

My thanks are due to many persons for the help they have given me in my work: to the other members of this Committee; to the Business Manager of our publications, J. M. Cowan; to the staff of our printer, the Waverly Press; and to the many scholars who have given me their advice.

Mr. Einar Haugen, as Director, gave the following report on the Linguistic Institute held at the University of Wisconsin June 24-August 18, 1944:

The faculty of this year's Institute consisted of J. H. Bonfante, Princeton University, C. D. Buck, University of Chicago, J. M. Cowan, University of Iowa, and Director of Intensive Language Program, A.C.L.S., Myles Dillon, University of Wisconsin, A. Goetze, Yale University, M. L. Hanley, University of Wisconsin, E. Haugen, University of Wisconsin, R-M. S. Heffner, University of Wisconsin, Harry Hoijer, University of California, Lloyd Kasten, University of Wisconsin, and W. F. Twaddell, University of Wisconsin. Courses were given in General Linguistics, Field Methods, Native Languages of America, Pronunciation of Modern English, Old Spanish, Vulgar Latin, Dialect Geography, Old Norse, Old High German, Comparative Grammar of Greek and Latin, Semitic Seminar, and Intensive Teaching of Chinese. Courses in Hittite and Sanskrit were offered but not given. Einar Haugen was Director, E. H. Sturtevant and J. M. Cowan were Associate Directors. Forty-two persons attended regularly the courses offered by the Institute.

Evening lectures were given by M. M. Mathews, E. H. Sturtevant, G. L. Trager, Lt. C. F. Hockett, Karl Buehler, J. H. Bonfante, A. Goetze. Luncheon discussions were conducted by A. Goetze, E. H. Sturtevant, Lt. C. F. Hockett, C. D. Buck, J. M. Cowan, Myles Dillon, R-M. S. Heffner, H. Hoijer. A. Goetze should be particularly mentioned for the series of six luncheon discussion on Semitic which he contributed.

Wartime conditions were material factors in the reduction of attendance at this session of the Institute. Many who planned to come or who wished to come were prevented by war work or military service. The class which attracted most attention, if only because of its high auditory perceptibility and willingness to burst into song on the least occasion, was the Chinese course, in which Professor Twaddell was assisted by three Chinese informants, Mr. Tung Yiu, Miss Pin Pin Tan, and Mr. Mu Hsien Chu.

Among those who attended there was general interest in the Institute, and an agreement that eight weeks permitted more thorough work than six.

Mr. Hans Kurath, for the Standing Committee on Research (Mr. Hans Kurath, chairman; Mr. C. C. Fries, Mr. H. M. Hoenigswald), presented the following report, which was ordered to be received and filed:

No actions were taken. One manuscript is now under consideration, another may come to us shortly.

Mr. Franklin Edgerton, for the Committee on Endowment for the Linguistic Institute (Mr. Edgerton, chairman; Miss Hahn, Mr. Fries), presented the following final report of the committee, which was ordered to be received and filed:

During the first months of 1944 an additional sum of $62.00 was collected by the committee, bringing the total payments on pledges in the current campaign (since 1940) to $2,293.95. One hundred sixty-seven pledges have now been paid in full. Payments are still continuing on one pledge, a very small one. Five have been abandoned as apparently uncollectible. On two of these partial payments were made; one of the pledgers is dead.

Mr. Twaddell, for the Delegates to the American Council of Learned Societies (Mr. Twaddell, term expiring 1946; Mr. Lane, term expiring 1944), presented the following report, which was ordered to be received and filed:

Both your delegates and the Secretary attended the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Council of Learned Societies, held on January 27-28, 1944, at the Westchester Country Club, Rye, New York.

Possibly one of the more significant items on the agenda was the reorganization of the Council's system of standing committees. The general plan offered was to reduce the over-all total from twenty-nine to fifteen. This was to be accomplished partly by dissolving some committees which had already achieved their purpose and partly by the consolidation of others. One important result hoped for in this proposed simplification was that the Advisory Board should be relieved of many of its administrative duties and should remain rather as a general planning staff. However, in so far as the reorganization may affect the constituent Societies, its most significant aspect is that the Council thereby envisages the transference of certain committee activities to the individual Societies most closely concerned. The Council would continue to support these activities in so far as its resources might permit, but the responsibility of their administration would rest with the particular Society.

Likewise of interest to the Linguistic Society was the general discussion, led by Mr. G. S. Ford, on area and linguistic-area studies in post-war education and research. This discussion emphasized that, while the organization of area programs on an undergraduate level might be generally practicable, only those universities which were provided with ample funds for research and adequate library resources should be encouraged to attempt graduate work in this field.

The director of the Intensive Language Program, Mr. Cowan, in his report of activities for the year 1943, pointed out to what a great extent that program had been of service to the war effort in the instruction of members of the armed forces in foreign languages. And in this connection, considerable discussion was given to methods of language instruction in the Area and Language Program of the A. S. T. P., and grounds were laid for the organization of Professor Doyle's committee for an investigation and report on methods, with a view to making recommendations relative to language instruction in the future. Since that time, as we all know, much space has been devoted to this matter in journals concerned with the teaching of modern languages.

Of less primary concern, but still a matter of deep interest to members of this Society, was the report of the Committee charged with aiding in the preservation of cultural monuments in war areas. That Committee deserves the highest commendation for record accomplishments in cooperation with military authorities.

Mr. Sehrt, for the Nominating Committee (Mr. Sehrt, chairman; Mr. Kepke, Mr. Bloomfield), reported the following nominations:

President, Y. R. Chao, Harvard University.

Vice-President, C. H. Carruthers, McGill University.

Secretary-Treasurer, J. M. Cowan, American Council of Learned Societies.

Executive Committee 1945-46 (two to be elected)

J. S. Kenyon, Hiram College.

G. L. Trager, U. S. Department of Interior.

Editor, Bernard Bloch, Yale University.

Committee on Publications 1945-47, R. A. Hall Jr., Brown University.

Nominating Committee 1945-47, Harry Hoiyer, University of California at Los Angeles.

The Secretary reported that all the nominees had stated willingness to serve if elected; that there had been a further nomination, by petition, of J. H. Bonfante, Princeton University, for a position on the Executive Committee 1945-46, and that Mr. Bonfante had stated that he would serve if elected. Other nominations were called for, and in their absence it was voted that the Secretary be instructed to cast one ballot for all nominees except those for the Executive Committee.

The President called on the Secretary to read the proposed amendment to the Constitution which had been distributed to the membership in printed form one month before the meeting:

We, the undersigned members of the Linguistic Society of America, hereby present to you the following amendment of the Constitution of the Society, for action in due course as provided in the final article of the Constitution:

That the Amendment to the Constitution, creating a class of Associate Members and defining their duties and privileges, with renumbering of certain other sections, which were adopted at the Annual Meeting in Indianapolis, January 1, 1942, as published in Bulletin No. 15, page 22, be repealed.

We propose this action for two reasons: (1) that inasmuch as no application has as yet been received by the Secretary for admission to Associate Membership, the provision for Associate Membership does not meet any widespread desire; (2) that as the number of Associate Members will be very small or actually zero, the maintenance of such a class of members merely complicates the administration of the Society without conferring adequate compensating benefits.

(Signed) Edwin B. Williams,
Alfred Senn,
Roland G. Kent.

Received by the Secretary September 8, 1942.

Mr. Cowan reported that no application for Associate Membership between the time of receipt of the proposed amendment and the present meeting had been received and he was heartily in accord with the proposed amendment. Its adoption was moved by Mr. Kent and properly seconded. It was then voted that polls for the election of two of the three candidates to the Executive Committee and the vote on the proposed amendment be opened. Ballots were duly distributed and collected by the tellers.

The President reported that the Society had been named the main legatee in the will of the late Klara H. Collitz, widow of Hermann Collitz, first President of the Society. The bequest consists of the Collitz estate in Baltimore, including the Collitz library and the home at 1027 North Calvert Street. Mr. Roland G. Kent had been named executor together with Mr. Henninghausen, an attorney in Baltimore, but had been unable to serve in this capacity because of the state of his health and had transferred his powers as executor to another member of the Society, Mr. John Phelps, resident of Baltimore. On the previous evening the Executive Committee had had a full report from Mr. Phelps on the terms of the will and the condition of the estate. The Executive Committee had voted to empower the President to name a small Committee on the Collitz Bequest to assist Mr. Phelps to protect the interests of the Society. The President then named Messrs. E. H. Sturtevant, Franklin Edgerton, W. F. Twaddell to this committee, with Mr. Sturtevant as chairman.

The President announced that Mr. John S. Kenyon and Mr. George L. Trager had been elected to the Executive Committee 1945-46 and that the amendment to the Constitution had been approved by practically unanimous vote, a two-thirds majority being necessary for adoption.

The President appointed as Committee on Resolutions Mr. John Phelps, Mr. Bernard Bloch, and Mr. E. H. Sturtevant.

Adjournment was taken at 12:15 P.M.

President Malone called the Second Session to order at 2:10 P.M. and presided throughout. About 70 persons attended. Papers 6-16 were presented and discussed. Adjournment was taken at 5:50 P.M.

The Annual Informal Dinner of the Society, at which members joined with guests and friends, was followed by the presidential address by President Kemp Malone, Some English Etymologies.

The Third Session convened at 9:40 with President Malone presiding. There were about 75 persons in attendance. Papers 17-20 were presented and discussed. The session adjourned at 11:45 P.M.

President Malone called the Fourth Session to order at 9:40 on Saturday morning. There were about 35 in attendance during the session. Papers 21-25 were presented and discussed. The session adjourned at noon.

The Fifth Session convened at 2:00 P.M. with President Malone presiding. Papers 26-32 were presented and discussed. About 80 persons were present at the session. Paper 33 was presented by title only.

Mr. John Phelps, for the Committee on Resolutions, presented the following report, which was unanimously adopted:

Your committee wishes to thank all those who have contributed to the success of this meeting. The Local Committee made most thorough plans and arrangements which contributed to a pleasant meeting. The management of the Biltmore Hotel has provided for the comfort of the members despite congested conditions. Finally, the Executive Committee arranged a most stimulating program of papers.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:30 P.M.

PERSONAL MEMBERS

This list includes all who were on the rolls of the Society in 1944. As far as the data are at hand, each entry gives the member's highest degree taken in course, his academic title or other occupation (unless he is a student), and his preferred mailing address if not already given in his title. SC in parentheses at the end of the entry indicates a Signer of the Call which led to the founding of the Society; FM indicates a Foundation Member; a date indicates the year of election. For members in the armed forces and in government service, the title and the address given are those currently valid; the former academic affiliations of such members (from which many of them are on temporary leave) may be found in Bulletin No. 15. Corrections and additions should be sent to the Secretary of the Society.
